Overview

The Great Lakes Indian Fish & Wildlife Commission (GLIFWC) is an intertribal agency of eleven member Ojibwe Bands providing assistance to the bands in activities necessary for the implementation of treaty-reserved rights and the effective management of treaty-protected resources.

The Public Information Office at GLIFWC is seeking a qualified contractor to complete a collection of short videos as part of a series of short films known as the “Ogichidaa Storytellers” project.

Expectations

Qualified contractors will submit a proposal for the planning, filming, sound, editing and final production of three videos. Video one will highlight the Leblanc case in Northern Michigan concerning the Bay Mills Tribe and their right to commercially harvest fish on Lake Superior. Video one will require travel to the Bay Mills Indian Community to conduct research and collect footage. Video two will focus on the GLIFWC Healing Circle Run and its origins/present day impacts. Video three will focus on the history of the Sandy Lake tragedy. Video two and three should include footage of the 2018 Healing Circle Run and commemoration of the Sandy Lake tragedy (both events will occur in July 2018), and interviews with community members living on GLIFWC member band reservations. Contractors will be expected to coordinate with the Public Information Office throughout the production. Final videos will be approximately 4-8 minutes in length.

Contractors will be responsible for securing rights to materials in the videos, which are protected by trademark or copyright, including music, images, etc., and transferring these rights to GLIFWC. Additionally, contractor will be responsible for securing releases signed by all individuals appearing in the videos and providing these releases to the Public Information Office. All rights in the videos will be owned by GLIFWC.

Requirements

All interested contractors must submit bids to the Public Information Office Director Dylan Jennings by 4:30 pm on January 22, 2018. Bids must include: project outline/proposal, time frame, budget, and work samples. The budget may include reasonable travel expenses associated with the project. Contractors will be required to abide by GLIFWC's financial policies and procedures.
